reading robert walser concentrates on the letters sent by the author robert walser to frieda mermet the laundry manager at a swiss psychiatric hospital where his sister worked as a teacher their exchange continued from 1913 to 1942 covering the time when walser s literary fortunes declined after which he himself was placed in an asylum for almost three decades before his death in 1956 this epistolary history provides a reflection on the question of correspondence and literature particularly the subject of lost correspondence gender the question of address and the performance of identity simon wortham frames the letters with an extensive critical biography about the life and writing of robert walser whose work has enjoyed a resurgence in recent years as her side of the exchange no longer survives the book concludes with a fictional reimagining of mermet s response to walser s letters this creative part is carefully introduced by chapters on epistolary writing in a range of critical settings from modernism to literary theory and deconstruction as well as exploring what is at stake in creative engagements with a literary legacy of this kind praise for reading robert walser the very question of a subject is at stake in this enchanting book intriguingly each chapter has a different voice from a man writing about walser to a man writing as a woman speaking as walser with a chorus in between that produces an exhilarating threefold reading of strangely connected desires sharon kivland artist writer and editor of the independent press ma bibliothÈque reading robert walser gifts us a psychologically flexible approach to the incomparably brilliant modernist writer never pathologizing wortham shows that walser s texts challenge us to think asexuality and queerness in new and dynamic ways rather than pathologizing walser wortham productively stays under walser s spell barbara n nagel princeton university in the last few decades the phrase spatial turn has received increased attention in german studies inspired by developments within the discipline of geography the volume german women writers and the spatial turn new perspectives engages the analytical category of space and the spatial turn in the context of german women s writing the collection of essays divides its discussion of spatiality in german literature into sections that reflect privileged sites within the current scholarly debates around space essays look to such issues as environmentalism globalization migration and immigration concerns of belonging points of encounter spaces and places of im mobility topographies of departure and arrival movement motion or shifting identities german women writers and the spatial turn new perspectives continues the challenge to understand the representation of space and place in german language texts by focusing on how spatial theory figures into the realm of feminist thinking and writing this book s argument is that walser toys with style in ways that are not purely literary but which carry the ambivalent resonance of politics in all its forms cultural politics sexual politics class politics both in his own time and still today once almost forgotten the swiss modernist author robert walser is now widely read and celebrated both in europe and in the anglo american world such was his early promise that franz kafka was heralded by robert musil as a peculiar case of the walser type the growing walser myth as reto sorg has called it has been fueled through reference to canonical readings by writers and critics such as walter benjamin susan sontag elias canetti w g sebald and j m coetzee meanwhile others have suggested that the legacy of important figures in german writing such as musil karl kraus frank wedekind and walser himself suffered in the past from the early canonization of a quartet of authors taken to represent the high water mark of modern german literature thomas mann rainer maria rilke franz kafka and bertolt brecht serving as a byword for literary achievement in the novel lyric poetry short prose and drama respectively perhaps like kafka walser today feels uncannily modern he is therefore attracting a great deal of critical interest for the key themes of his work the enigmatic and fleeting experience of modern life the intricacies of sexuality and sex identity the modern experience of work money and consumerism the intersecting politics of capitalism and populism and so on contemporary themes that connect powerfully with his own life and writing this study brings all of these issues into focus reassessing them through the lens of walter benjamin s claim that walser s writing is to be thought of in terms of a certain neglect of style against highly current debates on multilingual literary production this original study of the acclaimed contemporary poet translator uljana wolf considers how lyric verse is being creatively revitalised through experimental practices across languages genres and media based in berlin and new york wolf is concerned to explore and contest political and linguistic borders through poetry and translation as a poetic practice despite considerable critical acclaim wolf s writing has not yet formed the subject of any book length study likely due to its radical form and resistance to straightforward categorisations this english language volume will form the first published collection this collection explores the notion of reframing as a framework for better understanding the multi agent and multi level nature of the translation process generating new conversations in current debates on translational agency authority and power the volume puts forward reframing as an alternative metaphor to traditional conceptualizations and descriptions of translation which often position the process in such terms as transformation reproduction transposition and transfer chapters in the book reflect on the translator figure as a central agent in actively moving a translated text to a new context and the translation process as shaped by different forces and subjectivities when translational agency comes into play the book brings together cross disciplinary perspectives for viewing translation through the lens of agents drawing on a wide range of examples across geographic settings historical eras and language pairs the volume integrates analyses from the translated texts themselves as well as their paratexts to offer unique insights into the different layers of mediation in translation and the new frame's created for those texts this book will be of interest to scholars in translation studies comparative studies reception studies and cultural studies
