from the radical 1960s through the neo conservative 1980s and into the early 1990s the provocative cinematic careers of french director jean luc godard and italian director bernardo bertolucci have captured the imagination of filmgoers and critics alike although their films differ greatly godard produces highly cerebral and theoretical works while bertolucci creates films with more spectacle and emotionalism their careers have sparked lively discussion and debate mostly centred around the notion of an oedipal struggle between them this compendium of original essays offers invaluable insights into the life and works of one of the most important and influential directors in the history of cinema exploring his major films philosophy politics and connections to other critics and directors presents a compendium of original essays offering invaluable insights into the life and works of one of the most important and influential filmmakers in the history of cinema features contributions from an international cast of major film theorists and critics provides readers with both an in depth reading of godard s major films and a sense of his evolution from the new wave to his later political periods brings fresh insights into the great director s biography including reflections on his personal philosophy politics and connections to other critics and filmmakers explores many of the 80 features godard made in nearly 60 years and includes coverage of his recent work in video the reuse of images plots and genres from film history has become prominent in contemporary culture in this study vera dika explores this phenomenon from a broad range of critical perspectives examining works of art and film that resist the pull of the past dika provides an in depth analysis of works in several media including performance photography punk film and examples from mainstream american and european cinema proclaiming the renewed importance of the image and of genre she investigates works as diverse as cindy sherman s untitled film stills amos poe s the foreigner terence malick s badlands and francis ford coppola s one from the heart her study positions avant garde art work within the context of contemporary mainstream film practice as well as in relationship to their historical moment the movement known as neorealism lasted seven years generated only twenty one films failed at the box office and fell short of its didactic and aesthetic aspirations yet it exerted such a profound influence on italian cinema that all the best postwar directors had to come to terms with it whether in seeming imitation the early olmi in commercial exploitation the middle comencini or in ostensible rejection the recent tavianis despite the reactionary pressures of the marketplace and the highly personalized visions of fellini antonioni and visconti italian cinema has maintained its moral commitment to use the medium in socially responsible ways if not to change the world as the first neorealists hoped then at least to move filmgoers to face the pressing economic political and human problems in their midst from rossellini s open city 1945 to the taviani brothers night of the shooting stars 1982 the author does close readings of seventeen films that tell the story of neorealism s evolving influence on italian postwar cinematic expression other films discussed are de sica s bicycle thief and umberto d de santis s bitter rice comencini s bread love and fantasy fellini s la strada visconti s senso antonioni s red desert olmi s il posto germi s seduced and abandoned pasolini s teorema petri s investigation of a citizen above suspicion bertolucci s the conformist rosi s christ stopped at eboli and wertmuller s love and anarchy scola s we all loved each other so much provides the occasion for the author s own retrospective consideration of how italian cinema has fulfilled or disappointed the promise of neorealism richard roud film writer and co founder and director of the new york film festival was one of the most influential film critics of the twentieth century renowned for his close relationships with french new wave directors such as godard and truffaut he played a key role in bringing european art cinema to the attention of american and british audiences this anthology brings together selected writings from his published works with previously unpublished archival material from an unfinished study of Truffaut to extracts from his books on film makers such as Straub Huillet and Ophüls and articles for the Guardian and Sight Sound Charting Roads journey through the world of film festivals and film criticism from the 1950s to the 1980s decades never start on time provides a fascinating insight into the flourishing film culture of the era with a preface by David Thomson more than a study of a single filmmaker Bertolucci examines cinema as a synthesizing art able to draw upon influences from many disciplines in its effort to explore history and the unconscious the book also serves as a study of modern cinema's movement and direction over the past twenty years the Routledge Encyclopedia of Films comprises 200 essays by leading film scholars analysing the most important influential innovative and interesting films of all time arranged alphabetically each entry explores why each film is significant for those who study film and explores the social historical and political contexts in which the film was produced ranging from Hollywood classics to international bestsellers to lesser known representations of national cinema this collection is deliberately broad in scope crossing decades boundaries and genres the encyclopedia thus provides an introduction to the historical range and scope of cinema produced throughout the world
