the book focuses on the status and role of the social sciences in the current millennium drawing inspiration from a range of theorists it critically examines the key debates on the social science stream and focuses on its ir relevance in our times in the background of changing state market dialectics it specifically scrutinises knowledge politics of the global times to reveal how the neoliberal project aligns and fuses steep economic conditionalities with professional cultural parameters of higher academia to constrain autonomy and weaken radical expressions in social science pedagogy and research asserting that the humanistic core of social sciences has the potential to resist acts of reducing knowledge to a monochromatic form the book argues that the social science stream can challenge and resist such hegemonic ambitions it also identifies and analyses the contradictions dilemmas predicaments and false steps of social scientists and avoids a reductive approach based on the west versus non west binary the volume will be of interest to scholars and researchers of the social sciences in general and of sociology politics of knowledge political theory political sociology and education in particular this book is available as open access through the bloomsbury open access programme and is available on bloomsburycollections.com what is the purpose of social science how can social science make itself relevant to the intractable problems facing humanity in the twenty first century the social sciences are under threat from two main sources one is external reflected in a global university crisis that imposes the marketization of higher education on the ancient practice of scholarship the other internal threat is social science s withdrawal from publicly engaged teaching and research into the protective bunker of disciplinarity in articulating a vision for the public role of social science in the twenty first century john brewer argues that these threats also constitute an opportunity for a new public social science to emerge confident in its public value and fully engaged with the future of humanity in its teaching research and civic responsibilities while also remaining committed to science the argument is presented in the form of an interpretive essay thought provoking forward looking and challenging to intellectual orthodoxy it should be read and debated by all researchers and teachers in the social science disciplines who are concerned by the future of higher education and the relevance of their subjects to the future of humankind professor duverger at last provides the student with an overall view of the methodology of the social sciences he briefly traces the origin of the notion of a social science showing how it emerged from social philosophy its essential elements and pre conditions are described the splintering of social science into specialist disciplines is explained and the need for a general sociology confirmed the techniques of observation used by social scientists are dealt with in some detail and the unity of the social sciences is illustrated by examples of the universal application of these techniques documentary evidence in its various forms are described along with the basic analytical techniques including quantitative methods and content analysis other methods of gathering information through polls interviews attitude scales and participant observation are all described professor duverger brings together the different kinds of analysis used to assess the information thus gathered arguing that observing and theorizing are not two different stages or levels of research he examines the practical value and difficulties of general sociological theories partial theories and models and working hypotheses he both describes and assesses the limitations of experiment and the scope of comparative methods in the social sciences he then gives elementary instructions for using and assessing the value of mathematical techniques the possibilities of presenting social phenomena through graphs and charts are also explored there are useful book lists and diagrams paul diesing takes an innovative sometimes iconoclastic look at social scientists at work in many disciplines written by leading scholars from around the world the articles in this volume range from sin sufism and terrorism to theology in the 19th and 20th centuries vatican i and ii and the virgin birth this edition brings up to date a decade of research work developments of the faculty of arts and social science national university of singapore since the first volume was published in 1985 the state of the respective disciplines covered are reviewed in terms of notable theoretical and conceptual developments major benchmarks during the past decade and research lacunae that need to be addressed as well as their substantive developments and contributions in the singapore context and possible future directions resulting in a collection of essays that places the faculty s studies in an international comparative framework
