spatial challenges the dialogues books are published in association with the global planning education association network gpean and its member planning schools associations these associations represent 360 planning schools in nearly fifty countries around the globe they have selected these papers based on regional competitions effective practitioners in any field understand that lessons from the past underlie successes in the future which practices have worked before and which haven t what went wrong and what does that teach us too often however urban and regional planners simply don t know whether or how well planning policies were carried out evaluating urban and regional plans blends theory and practice to delineate the questions that planners need to ask as they shape the future of canadian communities mark seasons offers a wealth of pragmatic guidance on comprehensive plan evaluation processes and methods monitoring the outputs and outcomes generated by a plan and gauging their impact ensures that the planning function remains relevant and that resources are used effectively efficiently and equitably as both a primer on plan evaluation practice and an original contribution to theory evaluating urban and regional plans is an invaluable resource not only for the canadian planning community but for planners everywhere while the chinese planning system is vitally important to the rapid development which has been taking place over the past three decades this is the first text to provide a comprehensive examination and critical evaluation of this system it sets the current system in historical context and explains the hierarchy of government departments responsible for planning and construction the different types of plans produced and recent urban planning innovations which have been put into practice illustrated with boxed empirical case studies it shows the problems faced by the planning system in facing the uncertainty in the market economy this is the first volume exclusively dedicated to planning education with a focus on india and learning from global experiences for india prior to the 1990s planning education in india was largely confined to national and local economic concerns within a globalized scenario such pedagogies and theories have become outmoded with new concerns emerging in planning new pedagogical tools and theorizations need to be developed within planning curricula to provide today's planners with the wherewithal to adapt to changing and globalizing cities and regions in India therefore the eminent contributors to this volume deal exclusively and comprehensively with planning education in a globalized context divided into four thematic sections this volume provides a comprehensive view of planning education in India with focus on the trajectory of planning education in India the kinds of knowledge used for teaching in Indian planning schools and whether some sort of integration of diverse knowledges is achieved the ethical foundations of urban and regional planning in Indian planning schools the role of international planning perspectives in providing new insights for Indian planning education comprehensive and topical this volume is of interest to academics and researchers from planning institutes urban and regional planners and policy makers as well as architects social geographers and economists planning for growth urban and regional planning in China provides an overview of the changes in China's planning system policy and practices using concrete examples and informative details in language that is accessible enough for the undergraduate but thoroughly grounded in a wealth of research and academic experience to support academics it is the first accessible text on changing urban and regional planning in China under the process of transition from a centrally planned socialist economy to an emerging market in the world fulong wu a leading authority on Chinese cities and urban and regional planning sets up the historical framework of planning in China including its foundation based on the proactive approach to economic growth the new forms of planning such as the strategic spatial plan and urban cluster plans that have emerged and stimulated rapid urban expansion and transformed compact Chinese cities into dispersed metropolises and goes on to explain the new planning practices that began to pay attention to eco cities new towns and new development areas planning for growth urban and regional planning in China demonstrates that planning is not necessarily an enemy of growth and plays an important role in Chinese urbanization and economic growth on the other hand it also shows planning's limitations in achieving a more sustainable and just urban future region according to the eminent geographers is economically the most gainful administratively the most convenient sectoral and spatial unit where planning is a mere process economic growth is a mere outcome and general welfare is the ultimate goal whether they were large or small these regions provided the framework for determinist research on the man environment relationship to speak of a region is to understand its past to grasp the attachment to explain its economic political and social functioning in a local and world context it is to address the prospects for its future the regional planner while visualizing the spatial processes attempt to identify the flows that reflect interdependence among the spatial units in terms of economic activities that bind them thus it is possible to identify in the interrelated spatial sub systems one which acts as the dominant over the others the development of this type of spatial system could be explained in economic terms by factors such as transport cost economics of scale and agglomeration while the core one emerges as the dominant highest order pole in a hierarchical structure of spatial system for cities and towns planning issues are of two general kinds first there is a need to think ahead to accommodate the city's growth deciding which lands should be built on and when and whether they should be used for residential development for industry or for some more specialized function such as a shopping centre or playing fields besides definition concept scope objectives and content of regional planning basic principles aspects planning development strategies theories of regional growth and case studies have been emphasized in this study at present the techniques in relation to r s and g i s are widely utilized for the delineation of areal units or regions for planning purposes various data sets of the area are often used for interpreting and unifying them within g i s and image processing environment and analyzing the given data for identifying and delineating the prospective area that may be industrial agricultural urban etc within the selected study area in fact this book identifies many such aspects of development in regional planning which are found to be relevant not only in the present day context but also for the days ahead part of the popular networked cities series urban and regional technology planning focuses on the practice of relational planning and the stimulation of local city regional scale development planning in the context of the global knowledge economy and network society designed to offer scholars practitioners and decision makers studies on the ways of cities technologies and multiple forms of urban movement intersect and create the contemporary urban environment kenneth corey and mark wilson explore the dynamics of technology induced change that is taking place within the context of the global knowledge economy and network society examining first the knowledge economy itself wilson and corey go on to discuss its implications before proposing ways to strategize for future intelligent development with particular emphasis on the alert model for regional and local planning an important read for those practicing or studying planning in this network society planning regional futures is an intellectual call to engage planners to critically explore what planning is and should be in how cities and regions are planned this is in a context where planning is seen to face powerful challenges professionally intellectually and practically in ways arguably not seen before planning is no longer solely the domain of professional planners but opened up to a diverse group of actors the link between the study of cities and regions which traditionally had a disciplinary home in planning schools and the like steadily eroded as research increasingly takes place in interdisciplinary research institutes the advent of real time modelling posing fundamental challenges for the type of long term perspective that planning has traditionally afforded regional planning and its mixed record of achievement and the link between region and planning becoming decoupled as alternative regional and other spatial approaches to planning have emerged this book takes up the intellectual and practical challenge of planning regional futures moving beyond the narrow confines of existing debate and providing a forum for debating what planning is and should be for in how we plan cities and regions the chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of regional studies this book is comprised of articles and papers that have come about after years of academic and applied research endeavors of the practitioners and academicians in the field of urban and regional development planning most of these articles have already been presented and deliberated in national and international conferences held in different parts of the world namely indianapolis newcastle upon tyne rome istanbul cairo alexandria vienna stockholm jeddah riyadh jubail islamabad penang and bandung the concepts and case studies described in this book bring home the fact that the world is undergoing a gyration transition not only are developed and developing countries getting influenced by each other and transforming due to a process of circular causation but each of the two sets of countries are also undergoing a simultaneous internal transformation due to the differential infusion of technology and indigenous entrepreneurship as a consequence highly diversified urban systems are getting integrated interactively leading to the formation of a global village and achievement of a unity in diversity dialogues in urban and regional planning volume 5 is a selection of some of the best scholarship in urban and regional planning from around the world the internationally recognized authors of these award winning papers take up a range of salient issues from the theory and practice of planning including new research in social inclusion metropolitan planning urban design and transformation regional development and planning for the 21st century examines a number of related themes including the traditional approach of local and regional planning initiatives developed within the context of national goals the current decline of bi polar political and ideological blocs political decentralization and concurrent economic centralization including the growth of multi national corporations devolution of centralized planning powers to regions and localities and the rise and acceptance of sustainable development concepts the book is divided into five parts addressing 1 adjustments to political economic and social change 2 the problems of urban housing and housing and health 3 adjustments to environmental change development policies and sustainability 4 the problem of rapid urban growth and mega cities 5 adjustments of changing urban networks the contributors are from several countries worldwide and the chapters examine the issues at a global level
