In the introductory section, the anatomy of Spanish wine is explained alongside information on the laws and labels, demystifying the large range of official seals and wording found on Spanish wine labels. Also provided are helpful tips for visitors when ordering wines and other drinks in Spain.

A concise, easy-to-read book with information of all the wine-producing areas in Spain, including description of the various origin denominations, grapes, production, surface, and much more.

The New Spain brings the reader up to date with Spain's fast-changing wine scene. The dramatic leap in quality in the vineyards of Spain in recent years makes this a timely examination of the country's wines. The New Spain offers a region-by-region tour ranging from classics such as Rioja and Sherry to relative newcomers such as Ribera del Duero and Navarra. It includes a guide to vineyard classification, grapes, soil, climate, and winemaking processes.

Spain is Europe's most exciting wine producer. Sarah Jane Evans, a leading authority on the wines of Spain, analyses the main regions: Galicia, Asturias, and Cantabria; Castilla y León; Ribera del Duero; Rioja; Navarra; and Aragón, including profiles of the most interesting producers and their distinctive wines. Although rightly famed for the wines of Rioja, the north of Spain has even more to offer the wine adventurer. Criss-crossed by rivers, its landscape ranges from the dramatic Pyrenees in the north-east to the low inlets of the Atlantic coast in the west. Growers and consumers can enjoy a diversity of terroirs and an exciting array of native varieties. This introduction to the wines of northern Spain explores the changes starting in the west, where the wineries of Galicia, from Rías Baixas to Valdeorras, have multiplied while Bierzo is building a reputation for aromatic, refreshing reds. Castilla y León is home to a growing number of individual top-quality producers traveling east the success of ribera del duero has attracted investors from outside the region all eager to gain a share of the limelight while aragón is busy building an international reputation for its venerable bush vine garnachas across the country a new generation is joining established producers in a remarkable blossoming of fine wines extensive producer profiles and established and well known estates mingle on the page with newer makers and small producers to provide a thoroughly up to date and indispensable reference for all wine enthusiasts keen to explore this region whether in person or from a favourite armchair the wines of northern spain is essential reading
