introduction sriramesh van ruler zerfass krishnamurthy sriramesh betteke van ruler ansgar zerfass one could make a reasonable argument that public relations is an ancient practice going back millennia although it has been popularly perceived as a 20th century phenomenon scholarship in public relations however is more recent in origin with a history of less than four decades during these formative years the body of knowledge has expanded significantly which is laudable however there is potential for growth and improvement in many areas of the public relations literature over the decades among other things public relations scholarship has largely remained parochial to specific regions such as the united states the united kingdom latin america german speaking europe etc as evidenced in the bibliographic references of many essays in this volume itself where authors predominantly cite work from their own regions this is often necessitated by linguistic differences with only english serving as the universal language that helps permeate knowledge through most regions pedagogical and methodological factors also have played a role in the regionalization of the body of knowledge however we believe that knowledge flourishes most when it is shared across different kinds of barriers globalization has made it essential for us to recognize this reality more than ever this volume tries to bridge the gap and presents theories and concepts from researchers around the world this new and fully updated second edition of this acclaimed textbook offers a guide to public relations spanning all aspects of pr work including fashion event management crisis communications politics celebrity pr and corporate communications and takes account of the rapid change in the pr industry it combines essential practical guidance with a thought provoking analysis of this exciting but enigmatic industry its ethical dilemmas and the role it plays in the contemporary world not least its controversial but crucial relationship with the media pr today offers a fresh lively and realistic perspective on its subject based on the authors rare combination of international top level experience insider knowledge and years of teaching and writing about pr it will be invaluable for students taking public relations at undergraduate and postgraduate levels and essential reading for those seeking to start a career in this dynamic fast growing profession new to this edition content has been fully updated throughout to ensure up to date overview of the topics at hand interviews with leading figures in pr and beyond a thoroughly revised and expanded chapter on digital pr this slim volume hits hard at one major point public relations practitioners need to abandon their dominant attitude of narrowly serving the needs of their clients and instead attempt to engender a broad based sense of community by approaching public relations from this broader perspective both the needs of the client and the community are served implicit in this theory is that a closer knit community will retain more traditional family based values and therefore comprise a more stable and appreciative economic unit for one's client canadian journal of communication public relations is commonly viewed as using persuasive communications to achieve a client's vested goal kruckeberg and starck challenge this oversimplified approach asserting that public relations is a complex multi flow process that should and can affect society as a whole in part i they examine critically the historical definition and practice of public relations outlining the shortcomings of this narrow approach part ii explores how the community itself has changed such issues as the shift from rural to urban life and the attempt to regain a sense of community are discussed part iii attempts to reconcile the authors new notion of public relations and community through an in depth case study the results lead the authors to conclude that only if public relations is practiced as an active attempt to build a sense of community can it become a full partner in the communications milieu
