who our ancestors are from genetics or history we actually create the stories that make them our ancestors every american city had a small self aware and active black elite who felt it was their duty to set the standard for the less fortunate members of their race and to lead their communities by example professor gatewood s study examines this class of african americans by looking at the genealogies and occupations of specific families and individuals throughout the united states and their roles in their various communities from publisher description in this book judy kutulas complicates the common view that the 1970s were a time of counterrevolution against the radical activities and attitudes of the previous decade instead kutulas argues that the experiences and attitudes that were radical in the 1960s were becoming part of mainstream culture in the 1970s as sexual freedom gender equality and more complex notions of identity work and family were normalized through popular culture television movies music political causes and the emergence of new communities seemingly mundane things like watching the mary tyler moore show listening to carole king songs donning birkenstock sandals or reading roots were actually critical in shaping americans perceptions of themselves their families and their relation to authority even as these cultural shifts eventually gave way to a backlash of political and economic conservatism kutulas shows that what critics perceive as the narcissism of the 1970s was actually the next logical step in a longer process of assimilating 1960s values like individuality and diversity into everyday life exploring such issues as feminism sexuality and race kutulas demonstrates how popular culture helped many americans make sense of key transformations in u s economics society politics and culture in the late twentieth century
