saudi arabia oman bahrain the united arab emirates kuwait and qatar he focuses on whether media content rather than the process of media exposure i e vicarious exposure to different experiences is the decisive factor in cultivating modernity particularly kazan examines whether gulf media which convey socially and politically restricted traditional content in traditional societies cultivate attitudinal traditionality or modernity investigated are the differences in the impact of local regional and foreign media and various media organs including newspapers magazines radio television video and electronic media kazan also tests the notion of cultural imperialism such as the degrees of credibility that respondents lend to western media their interest in and satisfaction with western and regional media and the amount of time respondents allocate to western and local media specific media studied include the voice of america radio moscow monte carlo radio the bbc voice of the arabs voice of the arab homeland radio of the islamic republic of iran and the local broadcasting services of each gulf country dr kazan presents both a review and a critique of classical and mainstream theories of modernization in general and those of development communication in particular to determine the degrees of validity relevance and applicability of these theories to the development situation of gulf societies furthermore kazan develops an integrated mass media effects model that factors in both macro and micro processes that are dynamically interconnected interdependent and continuously evolving and changing to account for the impact of media on modernity and development media impact according to this model should be understood not only in terms of the socio economic and psychological characteristics of the media audience but also in terms of the dynamics of the whole socio cultural and political system kazan concludes his study with a critique of the western paradigm of development and presents the outline of a new paradigm of development that is more in harmony with the new physics with the ecosystems and with social justice argues that the modern multinational corporation has taken the place of earlier elites in the patronage of art like in the past a superordinate class decides through sponsorship what art is suitable for the masses and thus mutes art s liberating possibilities also argues that the postmodern remedy to the situation is mired in an other directedness that seeks to be politically correct and inoffensive and has itself fallen prey to crass commercialization and corporate control annotation copyrighted by book news inc portland or

this book examines the central aspects of modernity and the underlying factors at work in the process of modernization it begins by examining western modernity and then uses the insight gained from this examination to study the implications of western modernity for non western societies the author also attempts to demonstrate the inadequacy of the functional approach for understanding the process of modernization in non western regions

the term modernism is central to any discussion of twentieth century literature and critical theory astradur eysteinnsson here maintains that the concept of modernism does not emerge directly from the literature it subsumes but is in fact a product of critical practices relating to nontraditional literature intervening in these practices and correlating them with modernist works and with modern literary theory eysteinnsson undertakes a comprehensive reexamination of the idea of modernism eysteinson critically explores various manifestations of modernism in a rich array of american british and european literature criticism and theory he first examines many modernist paradigms detecting in them a conflict between modernism's culturally subversive potential and its relatively conservative status as a formalist project he then considers these paradigms as interpretations and fabrications of literary history seen in this light modernism both signals a historical change on the literary scene and implies the context of that change laden with the implications of tradition and modernity modernism fills its major function that of highlighting and defining the complex relations between history and postrealist literature eysteinson focuses on the ways in which the concept of modernism directs our understanding of literature and literary history and influences our judgment of experimental and postrealist works in literature and art he discusses in detail the relation of modernism to the key concepts postmodernism the avant garde and realism enacting a crisis of subject and reference modernism is not so much a form of discourse he asserts as its interruption a possible other modernity that reveals critical aspects of our social and linguistic experience in western culture comparatists literary theorists cultural historians and others interested in twentieth century literature and art will profit from this provocative book
