phase in the continent's history in which Africa developed its own culture and written records became more common. Major themes include the triumph of Islam, the extension of trading relations, cultural exchanges, and human contacts, and the development of kingdoms and empires.

The history of the Islamic faith in Africa spans 14 centuries. This book provides a detailed mapping of the cultural, political, geographic, and religious past of Islam in a single volume intended as a reference and textbook. It does not assume prior knowledge of the subject.

This book is an investigation of the towns of Palestine under Muslim rule from AD 600 to AD 1600. The primary form of evidence is archaeological reports, though historical sources are also used. Three questions are addressed: 1. Did the towns of Palestine decline under Muslim rule? 2. Did the towns become Islamic? 3. Does archaeology provide useful answers to answer these questions? The archaeology of twenty-six towns is investigated. The towns selected are in regional groups: the Negev, Eastern Galilee, and the Mediterranean coast, to illustrate different aspects of urban development from the Muslim conquest to the first century of Ottoman rule. The study also includes a detailed investigation of Ramla, which was founded by the Umayyads within the first century of Muslim rule.
