reading slaughter abattoir fictions space and empathy in late modernity examines literary depictions of slaughterhouses from the development of the industrial abattoir in the late nineteenth century to today the book focuses on how increasing and ongoing isolation and concealment of slaughter from the surrounding society affects readings and depictions of slaughter and abattoirs in literature and on the degree to which depictions of animals being slaughtered creates an avenue for empathic reactions in the reader or the opportunity for reflections on human animal relations through chapters on abattoir fictions in relation to narrative empathy anthropomorphism urban spaces rural spaces human identities and horror fiction sune borkfelt contributes to debates in literary animal studies human animal studies and beyond this collection of essays centers on literary representations of meat eating bringing aesthetic questions into dialogue with more established research on the ethics and politics of meat from the decline of traditional animal husbandry to the emergence of intensive agriculture and the biotechnological innovation of in vitro meat the last hundred years have seen dramatic changes in meat production meat consumption has risen substantially inciting the emergence of new forms of political subjectivity such as the radical rejection of meat production in veganism featuring essays on both canonical and lesser known authors literature and meat since 1900 illustrates the ways in which our meat regime is shaped reproduced and challenged as much by cultural and imaginative factors as by political contestation and moral reasoning bright young things wanted for big project they're in the prime of their lives but our bright young things are all burnt out six sparky twenty somethings just out of university and working dead end jobs they are all bored to tears with their lives and looking for a way out when a mysterious job is advertised in the newspaper they all apply what they least expect is to find themselves prisoners on a deserted island there's food in the fridge and they have a bedroom each but there's no telephone no television and no way to escape future folk horror contemporary anxieties and possible futures analyzes folk horror by looking at its recent popularity in novels and films such as the ritual 2011 the witch 2015 and candyman 2021 countering traditional views of the genre as depictions of the monstrous rural and pagan past trying to consume the present the contributors to this collection posit folk horror as being able to uniquely capture the anxieties of the twenty first century caused by an ongoing pandemic and the divisive populist politics that have arisen around it further this book shows how through its increasing intersections with other genres such as science fiction the weird and eco criticism as seen in films and texts like the zero theorem 2013 the witcher 2007 2021 and annihilation 2018 as well as through its engagement with topics around climate change racism and identity politics folk horror can point to other ways of being in the world and visions of possible futures this cultural history of the saltire society literary awards demonstrates the significance the awards have had within scottish literary and cultural life it is one piece of the wider cultural award puzzle and illustrates how far from being parochial or niche lesser known awards whose histories may be yet untold play their own role in the circulation of cultural value through the consecration of literary value the study of the society's book of the year and first book of the year awards not only highlights how important connections between literary awards and national culture and identity are within prize culture and how literary awards and their founding institutions can be products of the socio political and cultural milieu in which they form but this study also illustrates how existing literary award scholarship has only begun to scratch the surface of the complexities of the phenomenon this book promotes a new approach to considering literary prizes proposing that the concept of the literary awards hierarchy can contribute to emerging and developing discourses pertaining to literary and indeed cultural prizes more broadly
