a call to action by dr herron keyon gaston a call to action practically reversing the trends of mass incarceration explores and establishes a blueprint for united methodist churches based on the current mission plan for restorative justice ministries mprjm this mission plan could be used internally or externally within the united methodist church and beyond to begin to deal with the issues associated with the large numbers of persons leaving the prison system and reentering communities where the connectional system of the united methodist churches is established and where other church denominations are in general to assist retuning prisoners with reentry and restorative justice programs and ministries a call to action is for the united methodist church to use its historical work in this area along with its unique reformative connectional system the united methodist church is poised to lead in this area because of its creed structure and connectional emphasis on mission work outreach and methodical steadfastness to deliver and foster justice and the restorative process among former prisoners the summerfield united methodist church prison reentry model in bridgeport connecticut was identified as one of the unique prison reentry and restorative justice type programs to further explore this initiative using the summerfield model as a starting point for this project gaston invited parishioners to participate in focus group sessions in may 2017 a group of twenty five parishioners of varying socioeconomic backgrounds volunteered to participate the main discussion centered on the current prison fellowship ministry and whether members believed that they were making a difference in their own community this book has implications for the ministerial practice for dealing with those who have transgressed and how the united methodist church must use its spiritual and connectional resources to reform redeem and restore formerly incarcerated individuals back to god and to humanity this volume proposes a fresh strategy for ecumenical engagement receptive ecumenism that is fitted to the challenges of the contemporary context and has already been internationally recognised as making a distinctive and important new contribution to ecumenical thought and practice beyond this the volume tests and illustrates this proposal by examining what roman catholicism in particular might fruitfully learn from its ecumenical others challenging the tendency for ecumenical studies to ask whether explicitly or implicitly what do our others need to learn from us this volume presents a radical challenge to see ecumenism move forward into action by highlighting the opposite question what can we learn with integrity from our others this approach is not simply ecumenism as shared mission or ecumenism as problem solving and incremental agreement but ecumenism as a vital long term programme of individual communal and structural conversion driven like the gospel that inspires it by the promise of conversion into greater life and flourishing the aim is for the christian traditions to become more not less than they currently are by learning from or receiving of each other s gifts the 32 original essays that have been written for this unique volume explore these issues from a wide variety of denominational and disciplinary perspectives drawing together ecclesiologists professional ecumenists sociologists psychologists and organizational experts claiming the call to preach critically examines the dominant historical narrative that overtly or covertly has exercised its power to keep women from preaching donna giver johnston here recovers the histories of four notable female preaching pioneers who affected change in the religious landscape of nineteenth century america jarena lee frances willard louisa woosley and florence spearing randolph these women diverse in religion race class and culture each told their story of call in distinctive ways that articulated strong and effective rhetorical arguments for ecclesiastical sanction to give them a place in the pulpit

2020 marked the 100th anniversary of the 19th amendment while some things have changed others haven't this book tells the story of american methodist women's efforts fight for women's rights beginning with the women's christian temperance union and ending with the metoo movement each chapter documents particular methodist women and provides the reader with a basic historic context of the time or situation at hand as it shows how methodist women engaged and fought for women's equality or women's rights in american society and american methodism the faith of these methodist women emboldened them to reach beyond their social confines to find political avenues of social justice as women engaged in mission they sought to not simply fix social ills but to prevent them from happening again they addressed the causes of oppression and by stepping out of their place made a place for others reckoning methodism addresses the brokenness of the united methodist church umc in the united states homosexuality is but one of several fault lines with decades long histories in this predominantly white denomination demographic shifts racism and imperialism are heavily implicated in the current state of division what then is the true nature and mission of this church the umc is the public church divided distinct missional theologies arise from competing commitments and priorities when methodist programmatic initiatives such as vital congregations environmental witness and volunteers in mission fail to account for these differences denominational unity is weakened constructively this book seeks historical clarity collective repentance charismatic learning and institutional courage as united methodists reckon with inherited animosities and divisions this book provides no answers or programmatic fixes rather it provides possibilities for repairing past harms as united methodists seek ways to continue living out their wesleyan faith reckoning with the public church divided we glimpse the nature and mission of the church not only as it has been but also as it could be

Òfaith cometh by hearingÓÑso said saint paul and devoted christians from augustine to luther down to the present have placed particular emphasis on spiritual arts of listening in quiet retreats for prayer in the noisy exercises of protestant revivalism in the mystical pursuit of the voices of angels christians have listened for a divine call but what happened when the ear tuned to god's voice found itself under the inspection of enlightenment critics this book takes us into the ensuing debate about Òhearing thingsÓÑan intense entertaining even spectacular exchange over the auditory immediacy of popular christian piety the struggle was one of encyclopedic range and leigh eric schmidt conducts us through natural histories of the oracles anatomies of the diseased ear psychologies of the unsound mind acoustic technologies from speaking trumpets to talking machines philosophical regimens for educating the senses and rational recreations elaborated from natural magic notably ventriloquism and speaking statues hearing things enters this labyrinthÑall the new disciplines and pleasures of the modern earÑto explore the fate of christian listening during the enlightenment and its aftermath in schmidt's analysis the reimagining of hearing was instrumental in constituting religion itself as an object of study and suspicion the mystic's ear was hardly lost but it was now marked deeply with imposture and illusion this book explores how and why global protestant movements have been foundational for studies of internationalism during the early twentieth century hopes for the peaceful coexistence of nations animated emerging international protestant cooperation despite national hostilities including world war commitment to global christian fellowship became an urgent public agenda in this volume essays by european asian and north american scholars locate the essence of the young ecumenical movement in the dynamic tension between nationalism and internationalism during the early twentieth century political crises crushing disappointments and imperialist ambitions notwithstanding transnational protestant leaders networks and movements envisioned christianity as a contemporary multi cultural worldwide community an introduction and explanation of the different types of ministry available for people considering god's call to ministry in the united methodist church guide to exploring ministry in the united methodist church for those discerning god's call to ministry the christian as minister serves as a foundational guide this book introduces the profound meaning of that call provides a vision for ministry and outlines the various opportunities available through the united methodist church to live it out grounded in a wesleyan understanding of servant ministry and leadership it emphasizes an essential belief that all christians are ministers by virtue of their baptism whether you're considering licensed or ordained ministry this resource offers a clear and comprehensive introduction to the different pathways of service within the united methodist church if you're seeking clarity guidance or simply a starting point on your faith driven journey the christian as minister is an indispensable companion required reading for those answering god's call with purpose and devotion this resource is required reading for those considering candidacy within the united methodist church the title of this book so you've answered the call now what speaks first to me i want nothing more than to serve god and his people my passion is for christ and the salvation of his people i asked myself what are the steps or the process that will lead to a successful and faithful ministry be it ordained ministry or lay ministry in the sight of our lord jesus christ what steps are necessary to ensure a healthy balance between family and ministry what are the steps to be fully present with your family and fully present in the service of god the call to christian ministry in my opinion is the highest calling there is it is more than a vocation and even at its best can be very challenging rewarding and at the same time can be mentally physically and spiritually draining ministry can also be exhilarating and can also be lonely it is full of joy and at times it can bring rivers of tears that no box of tissues can dry up ministry in itself is a paradox the simple act of service can bring you to a place of needing to be served it is my hope and fervent prayer that this book will serve you the reader as another tool you can place in your ministry tool box to bring you closer to the awesome privilege and high honor of serving god with your whole heart mind body and soul the lord bless thee and keep thee the lord make his face shine upon thee and be gracious unto thee the lord lift up his countenance upon thee and give thee peace numbers 6 24 26 blessings always the rev andrew l foster iii m div ordained elder in the united methodist church
