this book explores how international drug control law should be interpreted within the context of international human rights law the first integrated analysis of the causes and effects of diverging views of drug use within the international community

the present publication contains the texts of the three main international drug control conventions the single convention on narcotic drugs of 1961 as amended by the 1972 protocol the convention on psychotropic substances of 1971 and the united nations convention against illicit traffic in narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances of 1988 annex i contains a table showing the year in which the narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances were placed under international control annex ii shows the year in which substances frequently used in the illicit manufacture of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances were placed under the control of the 1988 convention the international drug control regime built on three conventions 1961 1971 and 1988 prohibits non medical drug production and use while ensuring access for medical purposes despite nearly universal ratification and efforts focused on demand and supply reduction the illegal drug market has expanded with drug use increasing by 20 and problematic use by 45 in just a decade challenges such as synthetic drug crises the legalization of non medical cannabis in some regions and new trafficking methods like dark web markets have highlighted tensions within the regime and its limits in meeting key objectives this book examines the framework s legal foundations implementation and historical context alongside emerging tensions and their impact on global norms related to health development and human rights it explores whether the regime remains fit for purpose or requires reform assessing existing pathways for change and the implications of maintaining the status quo or of reforming offering critical insights for policymakers academics and communities international drug control law provides a timely and comprehensive analysis of the modernization of global drug policy in a rapidly shifting landscape responding to the harms caused by drugs is one of the most challenging social policy issues of our time in child rights and drug control on international law damon barrett explores the meaning of the child s right to protection from drugs under the convention on the rights of the child and the relationship between this right and the un drug control conventions adopting a critical approach the book traces the intersecting histories of the treaties the role of child rights in global drug policy discourse and the practice of the committee on the rights of the child it invites us to reflect upon the potential for child rights to provide justification for state actions associated with wider human rights risks this annual report from the international narcotics control board gives an extensive analysis of illicit drug abuse and the efforts to control it at the national and international level the 2004 report contains chapters on the following topics the interaction between supply and demand of illicit drugs and the need for integrated reduction strategies the operation of the international drug control system including the national drug control strategy adopted by afghanistan and a review of the world and regional situation in terms of treaty adherence national policies and regional co operation cultivation production trafficking and abuse

the present publication contains the texts of the three main international drug control conventions the single convention on narcotic drugs of 1961 as amended by the 1972 protocol the convention on psychotropic substances of 1971 and the united nations convention against illicit traffic in narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances of 1988 annex i contains a table showing the year in which the narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances were placed under international control annex ii shows the year in which substances frequently used in the illicit manufacture of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances were placed under the control of the 1988 convention the need for suppressing the illicit traffic in drugs can hardly be over emphasized yet the licit uses of drugs especially for medical and scientific needs cannot be suppressed apparently it is a ques tion of determining the vworld requirements of drugs for such legiti mate uses and of producing and manufacturing them accordingly owing to their multifarious medical uses in various parts of the world it proves to be almost impossible to determine exactly the amount of drugs required for legitimate purposes there is also the complicating factor that drugs are used for sociological and religious reasons which have a long history not only arc the licit uses and legitimate amounts of drugs difficult to determine but also such difficulties give rise to illicit traffic in them yet it is believed that a concerted international policy coupled with national co operation on various facets of the related problems namely limitation of production and or manufacture of drugs restriction on cultivation of plants that may contribute to addiction producing substances training and rehabilitation of drug addicts and efficient national administration would help eradicate drug abuse in search of an appropriate remedy this book has been devoted to a practical study of the problem and to exploring in this area of international law the relationship between the political and economic interests and the international economic order
