this collection of primary texts introduces readers to the mystical literature of the world's great religious traditions beginning with an introduction by Steven Katz, a leading scholar of mysticism. The anthology comprises poetry, prayer, narrative, and other writings from Jewish, Christian, Muslim, Hindu, Buddhist, Taoist, Confucianist, and Native American traditions. This collection provides readers not only with the primary mystical texts from each religious tradition but with an explanation of the context of the source and tradition. Comparative mysticism shows how the great mystical traditions of the world are deeply rooted in the religious traditions from which they originated. The contextual methodological approach taken throughout the anthology also addresses the critical question of what these mystical traditions at their highest level have in common. Despite the prevailing view that mystical traditions throughout the world are essentially similar, the presentation of the sources in this volume suggests that in fact the various traditions have distinct teachings and different metaphysical goals. The writings collected in comparative mysticism address the most fundamental and important methodological, epistemological, and hermeneutical questions regarding the study and interpretation of mysticism and mystical sources across cultures. This anthology will be an invaluable resource to students and scholars of mystic tradition for years to come.

In 2009 while the US government is hunting down Osama bin Laden in the Middle East, Helen Watson and her husband Ed set off on a cycling expedition from Glasgow to China, driven by a desire to understand the world beyond the media portrayal of George W. Bush's axis of evil. The couple pedal 15,000 km along the Silk Road, ancient trade routes that were undergoing rapid modernisation, crossing deserts and mountains, minefields and military zones. They reach Muslim China via Syria, Turkey, Iran, and Central Asia, plagued by sandstorms, overzealous officials, and endless punctures. Helen and Ed camp with Bedouin, sleep in farmers' houses, and are hosted by students and local dignitaries. They are waylaid with hundreds of cups of tea and interrogated about Western culture and marriage. Soon after the couple return home, the Arab Spring breaks, and the world Helen and Ed have visited is plunged into war and unrest. Memories of the hospitality the pair received lead them to welcome refugees to Scotland through the UK's first community sponsorship scheme, and to Helen writing about their adventure. Tea and Grit: A Bicycle Journey Along the Silk Road illuminates places rarely visited by Western travel writers through Helen's evocative prose. Visit Homs, the most embattled city of the Syrian war; Raqqa, the former capital of Islamic State; the Kurdish heartland of Eastern Turkey; the Islamic Republic of Iran; the secretive state of Turkmenistan; and Kashgar in Uyghur China. Through Helen's eyes, gain privileged glimpses into the lives of women in parts of the world characterised by the oppression of female liberties. Join Helen and Ed as they forsake the white noise of everyday British life to focus on real decisions: where to sleep, what to eat, how to stay safe. Rich in insight and compassion, Tea and Grit is a book about the rich and poetic cultures of the Silk Road, which have become imperilled by the aftermath of 9/11. Above all, Tea and Grit is a book about why it is more important than ever before to drink tea with the people we fear as strangers.

the poet as phenomenologist Rilke and the new poems opens up new perspectives on the relation between Rilke's poetry and phenomenological philosophy illustrating the ways in which poetry can offer an exceptional response to the philosophical problem of dualism drawing on the work of Husserl Heidegger and Merleau-Ponty Luke Fischer makes a new contribution to the tradition of phenomenological poetics and expands the debate among Germanists concerning the phenomenological status of Rilke's poetry which has been severely limited to comparisons of Rilke and Husserl Fischer explicates an implicit phenomenology of perception in Rilke's writings from his middle period 1902-1910 he argues that Rilke cultivated an artistic perception that in a philosophically significant manner overcomes the opposition between the sensuous and the intelligible while simultaneously transcending the boundaries of philosophy Fischer offers novel interpretations of central poems from Rilke's Neue Gedichte 1907 and Der neuen Gedichte anderer Teil 1908 and frames them as the ultimate articulation of Rilke's non-dualistic vision he thus demonstrates the continuity between Rilke and phenomenology while arguing that poetry in this case provides the most adequate response to a philosophical problem
