it is the purpose of this volume to give a simple sketch of the history of greek womanhood from the heroic age down to roman times so far as it can be gathered from ancient greek literature and from other available sources for a knowledge of antique life the topics covered are comprehensive and well thought out and acknowledge some of the shortcomings of the materials used since as the author puts it himself all that we know about greek women with the exception of the fragments of sappho s poems is derived from chronicles written by men now men never write dispassionately about women they either love or hate them they either idealize or caricature them furthermore greek literature was not only written by men but also by men for men the greek reading public the audience at the theater the gathering in the assembly and in the law courts were almost exclusively masculine remarks indicating the inferiority of the frailer but more fascinating sex are even in our day not altogether displeasing to the average man and constitute one of the stock motifs of humor hence it is not to be taken too seriously that on the greek stage there was much abuse of woman though this is offset by passages in which the sex is extravagantly praised it follows from this phenomenon tested hundreds of times that every thing may carry around it an invisibly written history the same thing applies to the human being every one of us carries around him a radiance invisible to the human eye but perceptible to the trained mind inscribed in this radiance in the shape of pictures are the most important results of our thoughts and our actions in accordance with tradition this radiance is termed the aura and there is an aura for every principle thus there will be an aura of the physical body of very small extent an aura of the astral body an aura of the mind it is this last which was recognised by religious tradition surrounding the heads of saints and divinities with halos it is thanks to this radiance of the three principles of the human being that we can explain many seemingly strange phenomena such as sudden sympathies or antipathies intuitions and so called unconscious previsions etc clairvoyance is also produced as we have said by means of a special magnetised condenser of the astral plane termed the magic mirror of which our author speaks in connection with the arsenal of magic just as he speaks of the visions seen in coffee grounds in the chapter dealing with divinations of the second degree and i quite understand the reserve which he shews here but perhaps he ought to have dealt separately at least with the psychometry which has been tested by experiments our author it is felt gives but a limited belief to these divinations of the second degree yet he describes conscientiously not the hundreds of ancient methods which are nearly forgotten but those of the kabbala such as onomancy taromancy and also the oracles the prophecies which prove that the secret influences of this radiance govern many of our states of mind
