this book argues that media and capitalism no longer exist as separated entities and posits three reasons why one can no longer exist without the other firstly mass media have become indispensable to capitalism due to the media s ability to sell the commodities of mass consumerism media capitalism also creates pro capital attitudes among a target population and establishes an ideological hegemony thirdly media capitalism provides mass deception to hide the pathologies of capitalism which include mass poverty rising inequalities and the acceleration of global warming to illuminate this the book s historical chapter traces the emergence of media capitalism its subsequent chapters show how media capitalism has infiltrated the public sphere society schools universities the world of work and finally democracy the book concludes by outlining how societies can transition from media capitalism to a post media capitalist society for years pundits have trumpeted the earthshattering changes that big data and smart networks will soon bring to our cities but what if cities have long been built for intelligence maybe for millennia in code and clay data and dirt shannon mattern advances the provocative argument that our urban spaces have been smart and mediated for thousands of years offering powerful new ways of thinking about our cities code and clay data and dirt goes far beyond the standard historical concepts of origins development revolutions and the accomplishments of an elite few mattern shows that in their architecture laws street layouts and civic knowledge and through technologies including the telephone telegraph radio printing writing and even the human voice cities have long negotiated a rich exchange between analog and digital code and clay data and dirt ether and ore mattern s vivid prose takes readers through a historically and geographically broad range of stories scenes and locations synthesizing a new narrative for our urban spaces taking media archaeology to the city s streets code and clay data and dirt reveals new ways to write our urban media and cultural histories drawing on a wide range of visual and historical sources this study examines the remarkable flowering largely overlooked in portraiture scholarship of portraits of old women in northern italy and especially bologna during the second half of the sixteenth century erin campbell argues that these images of unidentified women provide an opportunity to present new conceptual frameworks and question our assumptions about old age portraiture and the domestic interior matthias smalbrugge compares modern images to plays without a script while they appear to refer to a deeper identity or reality it is ultimately the image itself that truly matters he argues that our modern society of images is the product of a destructive tendency in the christian notion of the image in general and augustine of hippo s in particular this insight enables him to decode our current scripts of image as we live in an increasingly visual culture we are constantly confronted with images that seem to exist without a deeper identity or reality but did this referential character really get lost over time smalbrugge first explores the roots of the modern image by analysing imagery what it represents and its moral state within the framework of platonic philosophy he then moves to the augustinian heritage in particular the soliloquies the confessions and the trinity where he finds valuable insights into images and memory he explores within the trinitarian framework the crossroads of a theology of grace and a theology based on neoplatonic views smalbrugge ultimately answers two questions what happened to the referential character of the image and can it be recovered deborah l krohn presents here the first full length study of bartolomeo scappi s opera 1570 the first illustrated cookbook she treats the illustrations as visual evidence for a lost material reality and through the illustrations connects scappi s opera with other types of late renaissance illustrated books what emerges from both of these approaches is a new way of thinking about the place of cookbooks in the history of knowledge
