legitimation by constitution is a phrase coined by michelman and ferrara to represent an idea in rawlsian political liberalism of reliance on a dualist democracy ground level laws are subject to the constraints of a legal constitution that all citizens across the political spectrum can accept as a framework for their collective politics do constitutions matter are constitutions simply symbols of the political times at which they were adopted or do they systematically affect the course of public policy are the policy crises of failing democracies the result of bad luck or of fundamental problems associated with the major and minor constitutional reforms adopted during their recent histories the purpose of the present study is to address these questions using a blend of theory history and statistical analysis the swedish experience provides a nearly perfect laboratory in which to study the effects of constitutional reform during the past 200 years swedish governance has shifted from a king dominated system with an unelected four chamber parliament to a bicameral legislature elected with wealth weighted voting in 1866 and then to a new electoral system based on proportional representation and universal suffrage in 1920 and finally to a unicameral parliamentary system in 1970 all these radical reorganizations of swedish governance were accomplished peacefully using formal amendment procedures established by previous constitutions by focusing on constitutional issues rather than sweden s political history this book extends our understanding of constitutional reform and parliamentary democracy in general this book examines the largely neglected but crucial role of transnational actors in democratic constitution making the writing or rewriting of constitutions is usually a key moment in democratic transitions but how exactly does this take place most contemporary comparative constitutional literature draws on the concept of constituent power the power of the people to address this moment but what this overlooks this book argues is the important role of external transnational actors who tend to play a crucial role in the process drawing on sociolegal methodologies but informed by new legal realism this book develops a new theoretical framework for examining the involvement of such actors in constitution making empirically grounded the book uncovers a more comprehensive picture of how constitution making unfolds on the ground illuminating the power dynamics at play during the legal process it reveals not only the wide range of external actors involved but also the continuity between decolonisation and post cold war constitution making this book the first to provide an in depth examination of external actor involvement in constitution making will appeal to scholars of constitutional law sociolegal studies law and development and transitional justice
