excerpt from the protestant ethic and the spirit of capitalism max weber s essay die protestantische ethik und der geist des kapitalismus which is here translated was first published in the archiv fur sozialwissenschaft und sozialpolitik volumes xx and xxi for 1904 5 it was reprinted in 1920 as the first study in the ambitious series gesammelte aufsatze zur religionssoziologie which was left unfinished by weber s untimely death in that same year for the new printing he made considerable changes and appended both new material and replies to criticism in footnotes the translation has however been made directly from this last edition though the volume of footnotes is excessively large so as to form a serious detriment to the reader's enjoyment it has not seemed advisable either to omit any of them or to attempt to incorporate them into the text as it stands it shows most plainly how the problem has grown in Weber's own mind and it would be a pity to destroy that for the sake of artistic perfection a careful perusal of the notes is however especially recommended to the reader since a great deal of important material is contained in them the fact that they are printed separately from the main text should not be allowed to hinder their use the translation is as far as is possible faithful to the text rather than attempting to achieve any more than ordinary clear English style nothing has been altered and only a few comments to clarify obscure points and to refer the reader to related parts of Weber's work have been added about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works providing an analysis of academic ethics this text explores how ethics can be integrated into the university curriculum and what part particular cases should play in the teaching of ethics first published in 2011 this special issue of the interpreter and translator trainer provides a forum for reflection on questions of ethics in the context of translator and interpreter education covering a wide range of training contexts and types of translation and interpreting contributors call for a radically altered view of the relationship between ethics and the translating and interpreting profession a relationship in which ethical decisions can rarely if ever be made a priori but must be understood and taught as an integral and challenging element of one's work starting where Max Weber's The Protestant Ethic and the Spirit of Capitalism left off John E. Tropicman develops the idea that there is another religious based ethic permeating society a Catholic ethic where Weber proposed that a Protestant ethic supported the development of capitalism Tropicman argues that there is a Catholic ethic as well and that it is more caring and community oriented Weber's notion of the Protestant ethic has become widely accepted but until Tropicman's work beginning in the mid 1980s there had been no discussion of another religious based ethic he suggests that if the Protestant ethic is an achievement ethic the Catholic ethic is a helping one Tropicman outlines a Catholic ethic that is distinctive in its sympathy and outreach toward the poor and in its emphasis on family and community over economic success this book fully explores the Catholic ethic and its differing focus by using both historical and survey research it also points to the existence of other religious based ethics this clearly written book employing the tools of both sociology and religious thought will appeal to a wide audience including students and scholars in disciplines informed by the influence of religion on politics and on social and economic behavior
