in this classic text james elkins communicates the experience of painting beyond the traditional vocabulary of art history alchemy provides a strange language to explore what it is a painter really does in the studio the smells the mess the struggle to control the uncontrollable the special knowledge only painters hold of how colors will mix and how they will look written from the perspective of a painter turned art historian this anniversary edition includes a new introduction and preface by elkins in which he further reflects on the experience of painting and its role in the study of art today

william pressly reveals the degree to which barry s view of his role shaped the character of his art and examines how his works though rooted in traditional sources creatively depart in both form and content from conventional academic practice he also assesses the artist as a portrait painter including his use of portraiture within the context of historical subjects and as one of the few late eighteenth century british painters to work as an original printmaker this is a study of a visionary painter who uses a rich visual language unlike any other davis was born in sydney and studied at the national art school and julian ashton s school of fine art now back in melbourne davis continues to paint art that expresses social comment and conscience as well as garden paintings now in a surreal manner
