this is an amazing story in many respects you ll find the description of nature so vivid that you feel as if you re there there is the thrill drama love desperation and a mix of several such emotions however the incredible thing is the fact that despite being slow and very highly descriptive in many parts the story continues to captivate its readers this is a point of view story written depicting the perspective and inner turmoil of the protagonist it has been dictated in the third person the story has been written in the past primarily zooming in and out between 1952 to 1970 the overall timespan in the story goes as far back as 1940 and ends in 2010 with the demise of the protagonist in the beginning the story can look a bit confusing as two different timelines are running at the same time early childhood scenes of the protagonist and the events of the main storyline are narrated at the same time from the very beginning the style is great as it keeps the readers interested however the story picks up a rapid pace when the various timelines converge and you d find it difficult to spare even a minute to pay attention to anything else this is a beautiful story describing the journey and the struggles of a girl who finds herself stuck in an unpleasant situation at a very early age it is the story of her fortitude and an example of converting your pain into an asset this story is a great example of the fact that you can find a reason to live in the unlikeliest of things it also demonstrates beautifully that you can have a connection with things that people may not even find difficult to imagine the power to describe the most simple things in the most captivating ways is the strength of this story
