who moved the stone or who rolled away the stone mark 16:3 is a question which has worried theologians for the past two thousand years. Mr. Frank Morison, a prominent Bible scholar, tried to nail down this ghost in a book bearing the same title as this tract. Between 1930 and 1975 his book has gone through eleven editions. Through all his 192 pages of conjectures he failed to answer who moved the stone. Faber and Faber, London. On page 89 of his book he writes: "We are left therefore with the problem of the vacant tomb unsolved and proceeds to advance six hypotheses, very nearly knocking the proverbial nail on the head with his first supposition, i.e. that Joseph of Arimathea secretly removed the body to a more suitable resting place. After confessing that this Joseph might himself have removed it for private reasons to another place is one which seems to carry considerable weight."

People with questions: The Bible is absolutely full of them. A crook on a cross, a wild man in a cemetery, a five-time divorcée, a despondent cripple, a grieving sister, a father at the end of his rope. Why are these portraits in the Bible so we can look back in amazement at what Jesus did? No, these aren't just Sunday school stories; they are historic moments in which a real God met real pain. So we could answer the question: Does God care when I hurt? On every page of this powerfully moving book, New York Times best-selling author Max Lucado reminds us that the God who spoke to Moses at the burning bush still speaks to you today; the God who forgave King David still offers you forgiveness; the God who helped men and women in ages past still comes into your world, and he comes to do what you can't to move the stone away so you can see his answer.

It is mid-July, the time of year governed by Cancer, the Moon's sign. David's archaeologist father is excavating a Roman mosaic found in Yorkshire. David becomes fascinated by an ancient stone circle on a nearby hillside, but his interest turns to a pervading fear when he touches the stones and gets a powerful electric shock.
