a theory of the textile arts is notably lacking from the narrative of western art history this absence is surprising in light of the great esteem for textiles in medieval and early modern european material culture the present volume questions the reductive modern paradigm of painting and extends the canon of media in contemporary academic practice authors seek to reconstruct a neglected historical textile discourse from visual and literary sources and to weave a historical picture of a self aware but hitherto particularly taciturn medium of art this book exposes meanings of the textile in early modern visual arts and literature from different disciplinary and methodological perspectives a visual goldmine for designers of original print weave and embellishment sourcing ideas for textile design will help you generate new ideas develop them methodically and finally create beautifully designed textiles the carefully selected range of images illustrate how to use visual information in this process from a variety of sources breaking down the process into key themes colour surface structure texture and pattern this second edition includes case studies and interviews with insight into visual research and development from revered practising designers including dries van noten and reiko sudo spotlight sections offer historical or cultural perspectives on each point in the process and new coverage of material investigation colour analysis presentation and curation as well as advice on ip and copyright you ll also be guided through the three stages of textile design where you will generate your idea work to develop it and create your developed idea in the studio by engaging with this approach and exploring new ways of seeing ordinary things through the key themes you ll learn to create incredible effects in your textile design this book distinguishes textiles as a distinctive design discipline within the context of the growing field of design theory and research this work is a full length study of john talman the first director of the society of antiquaries and one of the most influential collectors of drawings in early 18th century britain highlights the need for the textile clothing and footwear industries to tailor their products and services to meet the requirements of increasingly segregated markets managing colour from the design stage to the finished product can be a difficult activity as colour perception is subjective and can therefore be inconsistent total colour management in textiles covers all aspects of managing colour from the design stage to the final product ensuring that the designer s vision is fulfilled in the finished colour there have been many new developments in the area of colour measurement and colour perception which are discussed these include discussion of the sensory effect of colour for design and use in product development and digital colour simulation concentrates on managing colour from the design stage to the finished product provides a comprehensive discussion on the many aspects of textile colour management written with an industrial applications viewpoint
