this book introduces the great civilization of byzantium and shows the centrality of byzantium's role in world history. It also celebrates the founding by Robert Woods Bliss and Mildred Bliss of one of the major institutions devoted to the study of that civilization, the Byzantine Center at Dumbarton Oaks in Washington D.C. Through seven interrelated chapters, which were originally given as lectures at two meetings held in Washington in 1990 and 1991 to honor the fiftieth anniversary of Dumbarton Oaks, the contributors demonstrate the place of Byzantine civilization in world history both eastern and western. At the same time, they show the place of Dumbarton Oaks in interpreting that civilization for what its founders called an ever-changing present. The first essay, written by Milton Anastos, a scholar who first came to Dumbarton Oaks in 1941 one year after the founding of the Byzantine Center, is devoted to the institution itself and to the role that it has played in Byzantine studies over the past fifty years. The four following chapters by Speros Vryonis, Dimitri Obolensky, Irfan Shahîd, and Angeliki Laiou discuss the relationships between Byzantium and its neighboring civilizations, Islamic, Slavic, and Western European, and display the great legacy that Byzantium left to those cultures. The two final essays by Gary Vikan and Henry Maguire present Byzantine art today, the best known aspect of Byzantine achievement, and discuss its reception by modern critics and historians.

By examining in detail the material life of pre-industrial peoples around the world, Fernand Braudel significantly changed the way historians view their subject. Volume I describes food and drink, dress and housing, demography and family structure, energy and technology, money and credit, and the growth of towns.

World History explores the human past around the globe to help us understand the world we live in today. It seeks to identify how major forces have developed over time like patterns of migration or world trade. It explores the cultures and political institutions of different regions to help explain commonalities and differences. World History builds on a growing amount of historical scholarship, some of which has truly altered the picture of the past. It involves a rich array of stories and examples of human variety, intriguing in themselves. It helps develop skills that are vital not just to the history classroom but to effective operation in a global society. Skills like comparing different societies, appreciating various viewpoints, identifying big changes and continuities in the human experience, always however, it uses the past as a prologue to the present. World historians argue that no one society past or present can be understood without reference to other societies and to larger global forces. They argue even more vigorously that the present, which clearly involves relationships that embrace the whole world, cannot be grasped without a sense of the global historical record. From its first edition, World Civilizations: The Global Experience has aimed at capturing a truly global approach by discussing and comparing major societies and focusing on their interactions. The goal is to present a clear factual framework while stimulating analysis about global contacts, regional patterns, and the whole process of change and continuity on a world stage. This kind of world history, focused on the development over time of the forces that shape the world today, helps students make sense of the present and prepare to meet the challenges of the future. It is hard to imagine a more important topic. Embracing the whole world's history obviously requires selectivity and explicit points of emphasis. This text gains coherence through decisions about time, about place, and about topic. In all three cases, the book encourages analysis relating facts to vital issues of interpretation through analysis and interpretation. Students become active engaged learners rather than serving as passive vessels for torrents of historical facts underpinning analysis. The issues of time, place, and topic are the three keys to an intelligible global past.
