john wootton is a senior vice principal in a secondary school in birmingham he has trained and coached hundreds of teachers and trainee teachers on the subject of behaviour management in his current school he uses the latest remote camera and phone technologies to coach teachers while they are teaching their students he believes strongly that teachers should spend as much time learning the art of behavior management as they do learning their subject his philosophy is simple its all about you he lives in wolverhampton england and loves to keep active by playing football and badminton and walking miles up and downstairs at school although he has done many jobs he still believes he is privileged to be a teacher from 1917 british soldiers who were unfit or too old for front line service were to serve unarmed and within the range of german guns for weeks or even months at a time undertaking labouring tasks both at the time and since they have arguably not been given the recognition they deserve for this difficult and dangerous work from non existence in 1914 by november 1918 military labour had developed into an organised and efficient 350 000 strong labour corps supported by dominion and foreign labour of more than a million men following the war the grim and solemn tasks of clearing battlefields and constructing cemeteries which continued until 1921 were also the responsibility of the corps here john starling and ivor lee bring together extensive research from both primary and secondary sources to reveal how the vital yet largely unreported role played by these brave soldiers was crucial to achieving victory in 1918
