excerpt from an introductory study of ethics the study of conduct which is here offered to students and teachers of philosophy was begun with the intention of furnishing simply a plain statement of the existing ethical situation by which i mean an analysis of the moral problem and a definition of the several types of ethical theory but it was found impossible to make a plain statement without adopting a point of view for the definition of the problem and the theories in question and in the search for a satisfactory point of view i have been led to a more or less independent reconstruction of the situation as a whole in a study like ethics where nothing can be uttered which has not been in a measure foreshadowed it is difficult to know how far one has succeeded in really contributing to the discussion yet i hope that the following pages may be found not only useful to students beginning the study but of interest to those already familiar with its problems i hope also that they may appeal to some who are not in the stricter sense students of philosophy without ignoring the necessities of scientific treatment i have endeavoured to avoid some of its narrower limitations and to meet the point of view of the educated man about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
