ww2 codebreaking people and places is the first volume of a series on a glossary of codebreaking people and places brings to the reader an easily understandable account and listing of those involved in collecting and analysing military intelligence principally during the second world war while some will be well known such as alan turing many others have made significant contributions to codebreaking but fail to attract the attention of the media for the most part from an individual named wren who worked at a codebreaking outstation supporting bletchley park to a mathematician who modified a codebreaking machine just prior to d day to a ladies foundationwear factory in hertfordshire that helped make machine components these people and places now can be appreciated as to where they fitted in within the overall picture of gathering and processing enemy intelligence in wartime the entries are cross referenced to enable the reader to research as much or as little as they want to dip in to the glossary to use it as a basis for further study or just to learn a little more about the people that helped us win the war with our allied friends the british codebreakers at bletchley park are now believed to have shortened the duration of the second world war by up to two years during the dark days of 1941 as britain stood almost alone against the the nazis this remarkable achievement seemed impossible this extraordinary book originally published as action this day includes descriptions by some of britain s foremost historians of the work of bletchley park from the breaking of enigma and other wartime codes to the invention of modern computing and its influence on cold war codebreaking crucially it features personal reminiscences and very human stories of wartime codebreaking from former bletchley park codebreakers themselves this edition includes new material from one of those who was there making the bletchley park codebreakers compulsive reading includes part 1 number 2 books and pamphlets including serials and contributions to periodicals july december
