the steady state and transitional dynamics of two sector models of endogenous growth are analyzed in this paper we describe necessary conditions for endogenous growth the conditions allow us to reduce the dynamics of the solution to a system with one state like and two control like variables we analyze the determinants of the long run growth rate we use the time elimination method to analyze the transitional dynamics of the models we find that there are transitions in real time if the point in time production possibility frontier is strictly concave which occurs for example if the two production functions are different or if there are decreasing point in time returns in any of the sectors we also show that if the models have a transition in real time the models are globally saddle path stable we find that the wealth or consumption smoothing effect tends to dominate the substitution or real wage effect so that the transition from relatively low levels of physical capital is carried over through high work effort rather than high savings we develop some empirical implications we show that the models predict conditional convergence in that in a cross section the growth rate is predicted to be negatively related to initial income but only after some measure of human capital is held constant thus the models are consistent with existing empirical cross country evidence
